

Abigail Doyle | Biography

Consultant

Abi's pedigree speaks for itself. She hails from a family of expert craftsmen in the film business and as such is no stranger to a film set, sound stage or recording studio. This past year she has worked as a Personal Assistant and Post Production Assistant on no less than six major feature films, including Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire.

An Edinburgh University graduate, Abi's passion for the written word and instinctive literary flair makes her an ideal leader in the editing and development of new proposals, projects and scripts nurtured under the umbrella of Analysis Lost.

As a former script reader for the BBC, her experiences in the process of sourcing and encouraging emerging talent, as well as in big business film production, combine to make her input of great value.
