

Nick Dalley | Biography

Artisan

Nick is Analysis Lost's resident storyboard artist. As well as fulfilling this duty to the highest level, Nick is schooled in the techniques of video production, editing and animation. A graduate of Duncan and Jordanstone College of Art and Design, Nick works as a freelance designer and video artist. His primary talent is for illustration. This gift, reinforced by his other skills, makes him a valuable member of the Analysis Lost team. Nick is also being trained as an AV engineer with RBS Gogarburn. While Nick is being groomed as a specialist in videoconferencing, touchscreen technology and digital presentation, he finds time to develop his proficiency in 3D animation. He's going places.

Nick's independent activity has helped Analysis Lost to build a library of original video art - he is the chief contributor to Visiology.

This bank of high-concept footage is available in fifteen minute DVD volumes and material can be licensed and manipulated to work within music videos and event visuals.
